There are 821 ways of evaluating the Exeter experience. The past year has been a period of critical introspection during which all these voices have been heard in a format of constructive experimentation and change. Yet an atmosphere of academic anguish and excellence has remained intact. It is our hope that the 1969 PEAN accurately represents these and other faces of the Exeter community.

PEOPLE

In Memoriam

George Russell Booth was a symbol of excellence to Exonians for thirty-four years. He joined the Mathematics Department immediately after his graduation from Princeton as a member of the Phi Beta Kappa. Students and faculty will long remember him, and dearly miss his presence.

J. GILPIN

Henry Phillips, Jr., came to Exeter in 1933 with a Ph.D. in classics from Harvard. He soon became the author of a widely used Greek textbook, Cilley Professor of Greek, and Chairman of the Greek Department until its union with the Latin Department in 1963. He taught history as well as classics, and his course in ancient history, which gave full play to his great learning, was particularly popular. He also made popular a beginning Greek course for seniors. Though effective as director of the lecture series, crew coach, and Republican politician, Henry Phillips will be remembered above all as a humane and open-minded teacher.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Board of the 1969 PEAN would like to extend its thanks for invaluable service rendered not only to its own fellowship, but to these people without whose assistance this book would not be the masterpiece it is:

MR. KILBURN ROULETTE whose elucidative advice is reflected throughout this book.

BRADBURY, SAYLES, O'NEILL—PARAGON whose efforts translated our fanciful ideas into a truly cherry PEAN.

PATRONS and ADVERTISERS whose generous financial support is the backbone of this book.

MR. W. FINDLEY GUFFEY III who allowed us editorial freedom.

THE EXONIAN which, despite its editors' indifference, was published to provide us with headlines.

And last and least of all to the HEELERS whose innocence and intelligence soon became successfully distorted in their preparation for roles as future PEANgods.
